TDCJ Reentry and Integration
Division Director
April Zamora

Zamora chosen to head Reentry and Integration Division

In October, April Zamora was promoted to director of the agency's Reentry and Integration Division, having previously served as director of the Texas Correctional Office on Offenders with Mental and Medical Impairments (TCOOMMI).

Zamora began her criminal justice career in 1999 with the Texas Youth Commission, completing her master's degree while employed as a caseworker focused primarily on substance abuse treatment. She became a parole officer in 2000 and worked as administrator of the Parole Division's substance abuse counseling, drug testing and therapeutic community programs. Zamora went on to become TCOOMMI's programs supervisor, and was promoted to TCOOMMI director in 2009.

Announcing the appointment, Executive Director Brad Livingston said, "(Zamora's) strong leadership experience working with juvenile and adult offender populations, to include those with serious medical and mental impairments, will serve this agency well as she assumes her new role." ●
